Bio

James thrives on new challenges and embraces opportunities to push beyond his comfort zone. His path to law wasn't scripted; it was driven by a desire to push himself and forge his own way, choosing law school as a bold step no one in his family had taken before. That same drive now fuels his work as an attorney, where clients can count on James to bring fresh thinking, focus, and a steady determination to every case. Whether he's tackling a complex legal issue or learning something completely new, James approaches each experience with confidence and curiosity. These skills make him a reliable teammate and a thoughtful advocate. At Huie, he thrives on the fact that no two cases are the same, and he takes pride in being someone clients can trust to meet every challenge head-on.

James focuses his practice in the areas of automotive litigation and product liability. During his time in law school, he was a Dean's Scholar and served as a Law School Ambassador, offering guidance and support to prospective law students during their decision-making journey to attend law school. He also gained hands-on litigation experience as part of the University of Alabama Civil Law Clinic, where he participated in a jury trial and secured a defense verdict.

In his free time, James enjoys golfing and cheering on the Auburn Tigers.

James earned his Bachelor of Science from Auburn University and received his J.D. from the University of Alabama School of Law.
