Bio

Will has always been drawn to roles where he can make a tangible impact, especially at the intersection of science, strategy, and service. With a background in anatomy and experience as a student athletic trainer at Clemson, he developed a deep appreciation for the medical field, which ultimately inspired him to pursue law as a way to approach complex issues from a different angle. Today, Will brings that same curiosity and drive to his legal practice, where he values the professionalism and problem-solving that define the field. Known for his diligence and thoughtful approach, Will is committed to delivering high-quality work and practical solutions that serve his clients well.

Will focuses his practice in the areas of medical malpractice, insurance defense, and product liability. During law school, Will was named to the Dean's List, served as the Senior Research and Writing Editor for the American Journal of Trial Advocacy, and was a member of the Air and Space Law Society. He also gained invaluable experiences as a Sweet 16 participant in the prestigious Williams Trial Competition.

Outside of work, Will enjoys watching Clemson football, running, lifting weights, and reading.

Will earned his Bachelor of Science from Clemson University and received his J.D. from Cumberland School of Law at Samford University.
