Bio

Crawford McCullers is committed to providing thoughtful, client-focused representation to individuals and businesses facing complex legal challenges. As a first-generation attorney, Crawford embraced the challenge of legal practice and quickly realized he had chosen the right career. Today, he is dedicated to helping clients navigate difficult situations with diligent advocacy and a focus on achieving the best possible outcomes.

Since beginning his legal career, Crawford has built his practice around helping people and businesses resolve legal issues. At Huie, Crawford represents clients in complex civil litigation, with a focus on transportation, insurance, and product liability matters. He believes that successful representation is defined by achieving the outcomes that best protect each client's interests, with strategies tailored to each client's unique goals and circumstances.

Crawford earned his Bachelor of Science in Finance and Economics from The University of Alabama and his JD from The University of Alabama School of Law, where he served as Senior Editor of the Alabama Civil Rights and Civil Liberties Law Review. Known for his determined, detail-oriented, and diligent approach, he brings careful preparation to every matter he handles while striving to build lasting relationships with the clients he serves.

Outside of the office, Crawford enjoys spending time with his family, especially his wife and their son, Percy. He also enjoys golfing, hiking, reading, spending time outdoors, and attending Alabama sporting events.
